Welcome to CPH:LAB

Dear Participant of CPH:LAB 2019/20,

It is with great pleasure that we welcome you to our very own talent development programme, CPH:LAB.

When we launched the very first edition of the programme in 2009, the idea was – and it still is – to create a space where unauthorized cinematic forms can be explored and developed. With the past two editions, CPH:LAB continues to stimulate innovation within the framework of an international, laboratory-like incubator supporting creative processes, while focusing on interactive and immersive media.

Back in the day, we selected a small group of international filmmakers to participate in an experimental film laboratory, hoping to stimulate a fresh, dialogue-based aesthetic.

We only dreamt of the success that the films have achieved over the years: from invitations to prestigious international film festivals, distribution in cinemas and broadcast on television, to winning critical acclaim and prizes around the world.

We now venture into the digital territory where lots of things are still to be explored, and we are happy to welcome a strong group of international creators as well as an equally strong group of tutors to guide you. The participants of the past edition are in full swing financing and finalising their productions, and we cannot wait to see what these new matches across countries and competences are going to bring us.

We will do our best to make it an experience of a lifetime. Here's to wishing you all the best and much success with your projects.

Welcome

What is CPH:LAB

CPH:LAB is CPH:DOX's talent development programme that encourages creative risk taking, celebrates raw talent, facilitates collaboration across borders and business sectors and supports visionaries to push the existing boundaries of documentary filmmaking. Since 2009 the lab has established itself as a highly acknowledged, ambitious and yet playful laboratory-style talent scheme showing great results.

The lab is conceived as an incubator for documentary projects that seek to explore the potential of digital technologies and advance new visions of what a documentary can be in a digital age. It offers a space for experimentation and collaboration in creative, cross-disciplinary partnerships across film, the creative arts, science, technology and social entrepreneurship.

The lab's central focus is an intensive 7-day project development and prototype workshop in the fall of 2019 followed by a 3-day strategy bootcamp and market access workshop during CPH:DOX in March 2020 with online development mentoring in between. In addition all participants will be assisted further in their efforts to access the market through partnerships with renowned arts organisations, pitching forum markets and festivals established by CPH:DOX.

CPH:LAB supports:

- Innovation competences and entrepreneurial skills
- Storytellers open to new digital formats
- New collaborative approaches between creative talents across sectors
- New ways of defining stakeholders, creating and enhancing an audiovisual work's relevance for its audience
- Alternative financing and distribution methods

In the following pages you will find a rundown of the CPH:LAB schedule. We start with introductions, then work on audience and platforms before moving on to story development, creating a prototype and a pitch. There is a lot to do in a week and it's a packed schedule. Each day starts with a team briefing, so please make sure that you are there on time each morning.

The schedule allows for team work, mentor meetings and input from your fellow lab participants. We hope that you will form strong ties with your fellow participants, and with the mentors, that will lead to collaborations on projects in the future.

There will be daily Development Briefings, which take the form of short seminars, followed by time for brainstorming and prototype building; Watering Holes, which are your regular production meetings with the mentor team, and Fireside Chats, where the mentors will talk in mini conference sessions about their practice and experience, how they see the industry changing in the future, and where opportunity lies.

Each mentor represents a different part of this rapidly-developing industry, covering live events, theatre, web/interactivity, AR, VR, 360 video, TV, games, film and festivals. Their experience from across these sectors will prove invaluable for your projects. Your fellow lab participants each have a wealth of diverse experience and together with the mentors, should prove a powerful catalyst to your work.

Please come with an open mind, a spirit of collaboration and a willingness to be nudged a little out of your comfort zone, and we will be able to achieve a lot together. We are there to support and to stimulate you. Let the LAB begin.

Overview

Day 2 focuses on identifying your intended audience/s, why you have chosen the platform you are working on and why this platform is appropriate for your audience.

Development Briefings are short presentations or seminars for all participants where the Head of Studies will provide development targets for the following brainstorm session.

Group Work sessions are where participants develop their lab projects according to the targets from the development briefing. Mentors will join in according to needs.

Watering Holes are scheduled meetings with mentors, who will provide you with input from across their range of experience and expertise. Each watering hole will focus on the development briefing targets.

Peer Presentations are your opportunity to get feedback from other participants on the Lab - each of whom comes from a different country or creative background with different approaches to solving problems.

Fireside Chats are evening presentations from, or talks with, the mentors or special guests who can present their take on the day's subject. Today we will hear from Annette Mees, who will give us some insight into the Audience of the Future.

We get you to map out these key elements of your narrative on a storyboard which you will present to the mentors in the watering holes.

During today's Fireside Chat we will get insight on Immersive story from Vassiliki Khonsari.

Overview On Day 4 we start to work on building prototypes that can be used to help you resolve a key aspect of your work as well as being a tool to support a pitch and inspire funders and collaborators to join your project.

Just as a trailer is an essential component of a documentary film pitch, prototypes are increasingly expected by potential funders or other supporters of immersive media projects. We will start by discussing the best approach for each project and get you to create a production plan for each of the prototypes. Once these have been presented in the Watering Holes, then it's time to start building/shooting/designing.

For today's Fireside Chat, we will make a field trip to Khora where Simon Lajboschitz will talk about how immersive technologies are influencing art practices and how digital art is valued and exhibited..

Day five | Tuesday 17 September

There are two Watering Holes where mentors can check on progress and in the peer presentations, participants can present prototypes to each other for additional feedback.

For today's Fireside Chat, we will be joined by Mads Damsbo of Makropol who will give a talk about sustainability in immersive production.

Day six | Wednesday 18 September

|---------------|---|
| 9:30 – 10:00 | Development Briefing: The art of pitching |
| 10:00 – 11:30 | Group Work: Participants prepare a pitch deck and pitch presentation; prototype production continues |
| 11:30 – 13:00 | Watering Holes VII: Value proposition |
| 13:00 – 14:00 | Lunch at Skabelonloftet: Refshalevej 167F, 1432 CPH |
| 14:00 – 14:15 | Development Briefing: Five stages of interaction |

| 15:30 – 17:00 | Watering Holes VIII: Participant groups pitch to the mentor team for feedback, including the five stories and the user journey |
| 17:00 – 19:30 | Watering Holes IX and Peer Presentations IV: Prototype trials |
| 20:00 | Dinner at Broaden & Build: Refshalevej 175A, 1432 CPH |

Overview On Day 6 we turn our attention to pitching – an essential part of the production process and a useful development tool in itself. The more you can talk about your project with clarity, the more effective the end result will be.

In The Art of Pitching we will look at how to effectively pitch interactive and immersive work and get you to start building a pitch deck that you will be able to use to accompany a one-on-one or a public pitch. We will get everyone to focus first on the Value Proposition – a technique to highlight what will make your project appealing to funders and audiences.

We will also challenge you to tell us a story of how audiences will experience the work across five stages of interaction, starting with how they will hear about it in the first place and ending with how they will tell other people about it.

The final stage will focus on a comprehensive pitch, bringing everything together into the five elements of an immersive pitch – the user, platform, story, impact and money stories.

No Fireside Chat today – instead we discuss post-lab mentoring and set targets ahead of session 2 of the lab at CPH:DOX in March.

Day seven | Thursday 19 September

|---------------|--|
| 9:30 – 10:30 | Technical Check |
| 10:30 – 13:00 | “Soft Pitch” to a Panel of Danish Experts |
| 13:00 – 14:00 | Lunch at Skabelonloftet: Refshalevej 167F, 1432 CPH |
| 14:00 – 15:30 | Prototype Presentation to Pitch Panel |

Overview There is just time for a tech check ahead of a ‘soft pitch’ to local experts who can provide additional development intelligence that you can take on board as you continue developing your projects in the coming months.

A ‘soft pitch’ is not a pitch for funding but for intelligence – what other tips and suggestions can the panel provide that can help you on your way at this early stage of development.

Over lunch our panelists can experience your prototypes before we all part ways – for now at least.
